The Training Interveners Peer-Learning Community consists of 20 individuals from across the United States who are engaged in training interveners. They began meeting quarterly in September 2019. The group’s purpose is to discuss obstacles, challenges, and successes, and share strategies and supports to enhance the training, promotion, and use of interveners.

To address the recertification needs of interveners who are certified and credentialed, the group has recently added certified/credentialed interveners to their meetings. A current activity is the review of draft requirements from the PAR²A Center on recertification processes for interveners who successfully complete the National Intervener Certification E-Portfolio (NICE) process.

The next steps for members of this PLC are to finalize the NICE recertification document and explore resources and systems in their states to identify potential partners and opportunities for collaboration on intervener training and professional development.
